ALL WELCOME

Friday 3rd February 2012

2pm - 4pm

Devonport Guildhall, Ker Street, Devonport

An one-off event showcasing a series of exploratory projects which reveal invisible histories, memories and traces in and around Devonport. These projects embed and reveal information about the past, present and future. They explore the use of interactive mobile media, smart objects and projection to suggest new ways of experiencing, interacting and engaging with our built environment.

Background

Fourty students from the Schools of Architecture and the Digital Art and Technology have worked to create interactive projects that address the following topic:
How can we bridge the gap between the digital and the physical, the material and the immaterial transforming the way we interact with the space around us?

Organisers: Unit Inbetween, School of Architecture and i-Dat, University of Plymouth with the kind support of RiO (Real Ideas Organisation)
